HOSPITAL INVESTIGATION BEGUN.

Those who have testified up to last night were H. D. Cole, member special board; A. Brooks, the steward, and Dr. Henderson, assistant physician. Some of the evidence reflected on the management. The investigation has barely begun. Hon. J. T. Lawless is representing Dr. Foster.

When the committee adjourns today it will probably be to convene Tuesday, May 15th.

state of affairs to continue. Somebody is responsible. Who is it?

The property owners along the beautiful Capital Landing road, known as "Lovers' Lane," are vociferous in their complaints of the scant, and, in some ways, shabby treatment they are receiving at the hands of the city authorities. The city claims this road as its own property, but never spends a dollar on its repair, trusting to one or two magnanimous York county people to do that. Moreover, the town allows its citizens to make it a general dumping place for garbage. Surely Williamsburg owes it to these property owners to at least protect them against garbage dumps. The ordinances cover this road as it does any other street. For conscience sake, enforce them. If we are not going to give these people a square deal, let us abandon the road to York county. We believe that road and the College Landing road beyond the cemetery would better be turned over to York and James City respectively.

Editor Gazette: As a reader of your paper I am much disappointed in not seeing the monthly honor roll of Nicholson school. I notice the Richmond papers give pages of these interesting to the children's reports. Why not The Gazette?

GOING AND COMING.

When Smith went to the office He was spick and debonair, And he walked erect and business-like

With chin high in the air He never looked to right or left— He looked a man of bliss;

Stern duty seemed his aim—his walk

Was Just As Straight As This.

When Smith came from the "office" Where he'd "labored" very late His walk was different—in fact it's difficult to state

Just how it was he walked along, I hardly think I'd miss

It very much to say that he Walked about like
